WE NOMINATE

Sixteen self-effacing Princetonians — the members of the Princeton Adult School Committee — whose hundreds of hours of planning and sheer hard work will be culminated in the week ahead with the launching of The Adult School's 22nd season. One of the Princeton Area's most far-reaching educational enterprises (which a year ago attracted 905 men and women from 39 municipalities), this remarkable "institution" with a faculty of almost 40 and a 31-course curriculum ranging from "20th Century Painting and Sculpture" and "The New Mathematics" to "Beginners' Typing" and "An Hour of Exercise" is as distinctively Princeton as Nassau Street, or even Nassau Hall.

Behind this Thursday's two-session Open House (Princeton High School, September 19, 4-6 p.m. and 8-9:30 p.m.) and the start of classes September 26 for the 10-evening first term stretch almost three decades of dedicated effort and a truly inspiring record of cooperation. Ever since it was brought into being in the late 1930's as the Princeton Leisure Hour School, The Adult School has been administered by its all-volunteer committee, has been "subsidized" in generous and thoughtful measure by the Borough Board of Education (for example, free classrooms and essential building services), and each year has "recruited" a highly talented faculty.

The evolution and success of the School, and in this respect it stands almost alone among the major Adult Schools in New Jersey, have rested entirely with responsible volunteers. Currently functioning under the chairmanship of Mrs. George F. Thomas, and with Mrs. Robert V. Dilley continuing her yeoman's work as Curriculum Chairman, the committee blueprints and then implements its programs of study, handles the details of registration and finance, and, with liberal assistance from its Executive Director, committee member Joseph Drulis, Assistant Principal in the High School, deals directly with its students and teachers.

In the formative years of the School, the spirit of its sponsors was reflected by one of its early chairmen, Hayward Greenland, who stressed: "When 151 people from all groups in the vicinity get together to improve their time, or their skills, or just have fun, it is surely worth the effort involved." The same outgoing spirit is mirrored in the devotion of George W. Loos, Jr., able Treasurer of Princeton Theological Seminary, the Adult School's Treasurer since its establishment and this year wrestling with a budget approximating $9,000.

Hallmarks of The Adult School have been the quality and admirable balance of its curriculum. Where 1962 statistics for adult education across the Nation show that only 25% of total course offerings fall into the academic and public affairs categories, some 55% of this year's Princeton courses can be described as emphasizing "knowledge or values" as opposed to skills, or vocational training. Included in the former grouping are no less than 11 courses in 5 languages and the intriguing "Soviet Russia: Clues to an Enigma," in which newly returned diplomat George F. Kennan will be one of eight lecturers.

For willingly shouldering a staggering share of community responsibility; for personifying the basically American point of view that citizenship above all means service to others; those cited above and the following named — Miss Braxton Preston, Mrs. Elmer Alpert, Miss Margaretta Barr, Stringfellow Barr, Mrs. Salomon Bochner, Miss Katherine Lyons, Archibald MacAllister, Simon Marcson, John R. Martin, Mrs. George McCluskey, Mrs. Robert Serrell and Mrs. Anne B. Shepherd — are our nominees as

NEW SCHOOL SHOWN

Plans Unveiled. "It is a prime educational facility, reflecting the quality and stability of the community and the kind and quality of the education we hope to give."

With these remarks by Graham Rohrer, president of the Borough School Board, the board revealed this week the detailed plans for its new Educational Center on Walnut Lane across from Princeton High School.

Borough voters will vote on the proposed new school and its financing at a special election on October 15. Acquisition of the site has already been approved by referendum. A descriptive brochure will be in the mail for every Borough voter in a few days.

The new school, scheduled to open in September, 1965, will be built for 1,000 students in classes of 25 each, kindergarten through eighth grade. It will stand in the northwest corner of the property on what would be the corner of Walnut Lane and Guyot Avenue if Guyot went through. It is only a few minutes' walk from Princeton High School.

Four Wings and a Core. To be built of brick in a warm, dark shade, the school will have a square, one-story core. On each side, at the corners, will be a two-story classroom unit connected to the core by a covered passageway. From above, the new complex looks rather like a chunky swastika.

The four wing units will house kindergarten, grades 1-3, grades 4-6 and the junior high 7-8 grades. There will be 12 classrooms to each wing, six on each floor, but only three kindergarten rooms.

"We wanted to avoid those long corridors," Mr. Rohrer explained, "so we have a short corridor with only three classrooms opening on each side. In addition, we have a teachers' conference room in each unit for guidance, remedial work or whatever the teachers feel is necessary."

The four units were assigned their places around the core according to a careful plan: for example, the kindergarten unit is in the rear, farthest from Walnut Lane, with its own playground; the junior highs are on the east, close to the gymnasium and the acres of playspace that open from it.

(At Nassau Street, kindergartens use the same substandard playground area as the big boys and girls. Play space at Witherspoon is below state requirements, also.)

The ground floor of the junior high wing contains industrial arts and home economics rooms, a science lab and science classroom. The educable room is here, also. (At Witherspoon there is no science lab room at all.)

Core Has Core. The center of the core building is a spacious hall. Opening from it are the gym on the south, auditorium on the north, library on the west and cafeterias on the east. The center hall itself will probably be lighted by a skylight or clerestory windows, and will be large enough for a variety of art and science exhibits.

Because the school board envisions the school as a community building, it has asked the architect to prepare a fully adult auditorium for town as well as student use. It will have permanent seats on a sloping floor with a full stage. A music classroom will be on each side of the stage.

(At Witherspoon School, a single room serves as classroom, music studio and art room.)

The cafeteria, designed to seat 300 boys and girls at one sitting, has been divided in two by the kitchen so that different age groups can eat at the same time without interference.

(At Nassau Street School, 225 boys and girls stay for lunch in a cafeteria that seats 45.)

The new gymnasium can be divided into two "teaching stations" and there are locker rooms for both boys and girls. (Young Borough residents now must wear gym suits to school on gym days) There is also a

Princeton's shiny new addition to what the advertising coterie likes to call the "communications field," radio station WHWH, staged its official dedication ceremonies Tuesday night at the Playhouse . . . plus free admission to "The Great Escape" following the ceremonies . . . And, despite splashy weather, the theater was at least half filled.

Ceremonies, me'd by WHWH President Herbert W. Hohler, included prayer (. . . and suffer not your transmitter to falter or your voltage ever to decrease, was the general idea); politicos (a welcome from Mayor Patterson and from Township Committeeman Carl Schaferi, and programs (capsule versions of WHWH's features) . . . All in all, it was an interesting performance—particularly one bit in which Barry ("Luncheon at the Nass") Frazier interviewed briefly one of the men who had taken part in the World War II escape which was the subject of the subsequent movie.

Somewhat earlier Tuesday evening the University Store played genial and justifiably proud host at a cocktail party to show off its re-designed ground floor . . . in particular its mammoth new book department . . . Actually, the book department is now much more than just a department.

It's big enough to be the equal of almost any book store anywhere . . . U-Store Manager Frederick J. Worthington says that more than 25,000 different titles are currently on sale in the store, a 40% increase over the past.

"Golf is a 'umblin' game," is an eloquent truism. Just how humbling golf can be was succinctly illustrated last weekend at Springdale when a would-be qualifier for the club championship reported how he had fared. "I was doing all right," he said, "until the first hole."

Lure Them Early. The library has been cannily designed to lure the young. It is split-level, so arranged that primary children can sit on the floor of the lower level around a teacher with a picture book while upperclassmen in the higher level work quietly on more adult assignments.

Between the stacks will be small nooks with tables for three or four, or for one advanced student on a special project of his own.

There will be room for more than 15,000 volumes, although each of the four classroom units will have its own books. Workrooms, conference and study rooms will also be part of the library complex.

"We want the library to be something special," Mr Rohrer said, "a warm and friendly place for a child to go."

Modern, Not "Avant". "We have consciously avoided the 'avant garde,'" said Dale Sprankle, project architect for the school. "Our design has grown out from the inner floor-plan, and the floor-plan is what has occupied us."

The school is, however, modern in all aspects, flexible enough to accommodate a changing curriculum or possible merger with the Township.

"But this isn't just a building, it's a School," emphasized Mrs Paul Strayer, Board member. "It's the result of educational planning." Mr Rohrer added that he looked upon it as "an inspired use of space for teaching purposes."

Nassau and Witherspoon are 51 and 55 years old, respectively.

"They have an emotional value to the community," Mr. Rohrer said, "and they are not unsafe by any means, but I have been appalled to discover how substandard our teaching facilities are in these half-century-old schools."

The Money. The Borough School Board has a total project budget of $2,500,000. The Board plans to finance half the cost of the proposed new school by selling the two old ones at about $650,000 for the pair, based on professional appraisal, and by shifting the school tax levy year from the present fiscal year basis to a calendar year basis.

In the first year of this change-over (1964), taxes for the first half of the school year ending June 30, will already have been paid in 1963, and this will mean a windfall of $400,000 which is to be applied toward the new school.

Voters already approved a $172,000 site acquisition bond issue last September.

Added to the sources named above, this gives $1,222,000, leaving $1,278,000 to be raised by bond issue.

The Board expects that tax revenues from the return of the two school properties to the Borough tax rolls, plus the $53,000 annual savings in maintenance costs that will come when there is one new school instead of two old ones, will leave only $20,000 to be raised by taxes.

According to Board figures, this means that Borough taxpayers will pay only eight cents more per $100 assessed valuation for their new Education Center.

By law, the Board must offer its two properties at public auction. If the voters authorize the new school at the October 10 referendum, the Board will then set an auction date.

YOUR CARPET QUESTIONS

Does wool carpet cause more dust than nylon?

This is really a tough one. In all honesty, I do not believe so. Now that we have on the market $3.00 a yard continuous filament nylon, I would venture to say as much dirt gets imbedded in the bulk of the nylon as would get in wool because it will flatten and cover the dirt more readily.

NEW BOROUGH SCHOOL: This architect's drawing shows the main entrance of the new Borough school as it will appear from Walnut Lane. Its large center core, containing administrative offices, auditorium, gym, cafeteria and library, will never be seen in its whole mass but will be "broken" by the two-story classroom wings. The fins at classroom windows will in turn, break the expanses of brick wall and provide alcoves. Although the roof line has not been finally decided on, it will not be a pancake, and may well be the mansard roof shown here. The school as a whole will be so close to Princeton High School that faculty can go back and forth, giving younger students in the new school a chance at specialized instruction. For accompanying story, see "This Is Princeton," page 1.

TOPICS Of the Town

WE'LL KEEP STATUS QUO

On "Right to Know," Township Committee decided Monday night, on recommendation from Administrator Joseph Nini, to keep the status quo on public records.

Municipalities in the state have until October 1, under the new "Right to Know" law, to decide which records they want the public to see, and which they want to keep closed. A higher state authority will pass on the final decisions, but the first decision is up to the community.

In the Township as in other communities, welfare department and certain public health records are already "off the record" by law, but others will be open and available. Since there is no law requiring police to keep a docket, a police department may keep its docket contents secret if it so desires, depending on the circumstances.

Alexander Road can now be straightened out on the Township side, because the bidding was itself straightened out on Monday night and Louis Simonye of Lambertville emerged as the low bidder with $37,009. He was low bidder last time around, also, but he lost on a technicality and because the state thought that even his low bid was too high.

Terhune Road came into view again when Lowell F. Curran, spokesman for Carl Geiger of Shady Brook, protested to Committee that the Township was "patently unfair" in requiring Mr. Geiger to dedicate a 70-foot right-of-way across Shady Brook property for Terhune and then make him pay for constructing the road as well when, in Mr. Geiger's opinion, it would not benefit him in the least.

Mayor R. Kenneth Fairman reminded Mr. Curran that the Planning Board had laid down its Terhune Road requirements to Mr. Geiger back in 1956. He said the present Board had asked Committee to decide how much the Township share in the paving of Terhune would be, and he said that Committee would examine the question in the light of Township road policy.

"If the Township had adopted an official map, then the Township would have to pay for the construction of the road," Mr. Curran said, and he charged that the Township had never adopted an official map for this very reason.

Gordon Griffin, Township attorney, explained that a municipality had its choice of controls: official map or master plan and that the Township had chosen the master plan device as the more flexible one for a large, topographically diverse and undeveloped community.

In an effort to unsnarl rush-hour tangles at the intersection of Valley and North Harrison, Committee accepted a Traffic Safety Committee recommendation to ban parking on the south side of Valley between Ewing and Harrison.

Lines will be painted on Valley Road guiding right-turn, south-bound traffic to the far right and straight-ahead Shopping Center traffic to the center, leaving the left to west-bound traffic going away from the Shopping Center. An ordinance will be introduced to this effect.

Committee listened with concern to the protests of Mac G. Morris, 417 Herrontown Road, during the public hearing on a $17,800 ordinance to extend the Herrontown sewer, and then passed the ordinance after calculations showed that Mr. Morris' property does not amount to one-half the road frontage involved.

If the protesting Mr. Morris had owned half or more of the foolage involved, then Committee would have needed a finding of "public necessity" in order to pass the measure.

Sidewalk? Puzzled by school board estimates that the board could save $1787 a year if the Township were to build a Rosedale Road sidewalk from the Edgerstoune footpath to the Johnson Park School crossing, Committee decided to call in Norman Anderson, Board secretary, for precise figures before acting on the school board's sidewalk request.

Frank Quinby, Township engineer, estimated that the 300-foot sidewalk would cost $3,000 to $4,400. When Committeemen expressed surprise at the high cost, Mr. Quinby said that metal guard-rails would be needed and that the Township would have to acquire slope easements from Robert W. Johnson, the property owner involved, and then supply fill to fill in the slope.

The school board has asked for the sidewalk so that it can eliminate one crossing guard and transfer the school bus now used at this spot to another route.

In a major policy shift, Township Committee decided to set aside a second Clean-Up Week for 1963, and to implement the policy in years to come.

"The Borough has a Clean-Up Week at this time (October 7-14)," said Mr. Nini gloomily, "and Township people always think we have clean-up time, too, so they put trash out. We decided the simplest thing would be to have a Clean-Up Week of our own."

"THE MONEY TREE" BURNS

Shop Gutted in Friday Fire.

"Boo! I'm back!" read an ad for The Money Tree, one of Princeton's most attractive and unusual shops, in last Thursday's TOWN TOPICS. Working hard to get the store ready for its "grand reopening" Scheduled this past Monday. The Money Tree's originator and owner, Laurie Vance Johnson, was in the building at 262 Alexander Street until almost midnight on Thursday.

But, sadly, there was no reopening on Monday, and all of Mrs. Johnson's work, including a summer-long buying trip, went for naught. Early Friday morning, only a few hours after Mrs. Johnson went home, The Money Tree was devastated by fire.

The fire was first noticed and the alarm turned in at 2:25 a.m. by Joseph Fasanella, owner of Andy's Tavern next door. All three Princeton fire companies answered the alarm, but the stubborn blaze was not extinguished until 3.30, after it had swept through the second floor of the two-story building.

Cause of the fire is attributed to lightning. A large hole burning in the outside front wall of the buiding when firemen first arrived led to this conclusion. Severe electrical storms had been hitting the Princeton area repeatedly throughout the night.

The flames spread rapidly through the second floor and also down into the ground floor, where smoke and water damaged whatever the flames did not reach. Destruction to the interior of the building was almost total, and it is probable that the rest of the structure will have to be demolished.

One Princeton fireman was injured while fighting the blaze. Clinton Groover, a member of Mercer Engine Co. No 3, was temporarily blinded by water from a high-pressure fire hose. He was taken to Princeton Hospital, where he was treated and released.

HOPEWELL STORE ROBBED

Saleswoman Struck on Head.

Kesler and Bellis, women's and children's wear shop in Hopewell, was robbed Monday afternoon of $164.

The thief struck Mrs Sarah Hunt of 116 Ingleside Avenue, Pennington, the saleswoman, on the head with a blunt instrument. Alone in the store at the time, she crawled to the second floor apartment of the owner, Miss Marie Bellis, who called police.

Mrs. Hunt was taken to a Trenton hospital by the Hopewell First Aid Squad. After receiving five stitches, she was released.

Mrs. Hunt told State Police that the man who struck her before emptying the cash register had been in the store at 33 W. Broad Street twice before on Monday to look at children's clothing. On the third occasion, he asked to see something from the show case behind her and when she turned her back, he struck her.

The robber was described as about 5 feet, eight inches, ap-

News Of The THEATRES

MEANWHILE, OUT FRONT . . .

McCarter at Work. Although the company has not yet arrived and the stage still resembles a workshop — which indeed it is — the season has really begun at McCarter Theatre.

Three busy, zealous, lively, dedicated and talented young men (there may be more laudatory adjectives, but those will do), under the benign eyes of Arthur Lithgow, director of production, and Mrs. Marguerite McAneny, general manager, have begun to set things in motion.

Gil Hemsley, associate producer in charge of production, returns to McCarter for his fourth year. Invited to design the stage lighting for the American Shakespeare Festival's production of Shaw's "Caesar and Cleopatra", Mr. Hensley spent a large part of the summer at Stratford, Conn. The Shaw work was played in July.

Here at McCarter, he watches everything from the stage apron right straight back. At the moment, he is supervising the installation of a ney lighting board which he designed himself. Cost: $25,000. Improvement: infinite.

With Hugh Hardy, he has developed a new, permanent apron which will mean that McCarter can change from a raked (or slightly pitched) floor to a stage (or flat) floor in 15 minutes, in (end of last year's hour and a half. Individual performers, like singers and instrumentalists who appear in the concert programs, will now be in front of the the fire wall, an arrangement which will mean not only better acoustics, but a more intimate feeling of rapport between performer and audience.

William Lockwood, associate producer and booking director, is an old hand in Princeton. Son of Dr. and Mrs. William W. Lockwood, 71 Jefferson Road, and a graduate of Princeton University with the class of 1959, he was half of Dana Attractions, one of the first of the undergraduate impresario groups.

With his partner, he was responsible for bringing to Princeton during the 1958-60 seasons, Emlyn Williams, Hal Holbrook, Carlos Montoya and the LeGallienne "Mary Stuart." Then he went west and, for three seasons, ran the largest theatrical and concert management operation in northern California, grossing about $1.5 million in the process.

Dana opened on the coast with Leonard Bernstein and the New York Philarmonic in August of 1960 and closed with Bernstein and the Philharmonic August of 1963.

(Recalling his experiences on the coast, he says that Dana Attractions had a hard time filling the theatre for Joan Baez' first appearance. "But for her second appearance . . . !")

At McCarter, Mr. Lockwood will be responsible for public relations and booking. "I think my booking experience will serve McCarter well — there are lots of exciting specials coming up for the new season," he says.

Steve Arnold, press associate and director of special promotions, spent this summer in the Soiet Union with the Bil Baird puppets as part of the State Department's cultural exchange program.

A versatile, all-round theatre man, Mr. Arnold was on the Baird staff as sound and electronic specialist.

In this capacity, he spent his two summer months in the Soviet Union playing with such problems as translating Soviet curren into American-made lighting fixtures, and the like.

He has also toured with the Living Theatre as lighting designer, and has in fact, "done everything but act and direct."

TWO ON THE SIDE

Pirandello, Montoya. Before the formal black-tie opening of the McCarter Theatre repertory season, the theatre will have a pair of informal, or Madras tie evenings.

The first will be on Saturday, October 5, when the national company of the Circle-in-the-Square revival of "Six Characters in Search of an Author" comes to the McCarter stage. Luigi Pirandello's masterpiece will be in Princeton for one night only.

The work that first brought fame to Pirandello, "Six Characters" is now in its seventh month at the Martinique Theatre in New York. William Bacon is the director of the national company.

Winner of the Nobel Prize for literature in 1934 Pirandello is regarded as Italy's greatest 20th century playwright. He wrote more than 40 plays before his death in 1936. "Six Characters" was written in the early 1920's.

And Now . . . Montoya. An old Princeton favorite, Carlos Montoya, unchallenged master of the flamenco guitar, will appear at McCarter in the first of a series of Midnight Specials on Friday, October 12. Montoya has not appeared in Princeton since 1959 when he played to two SRO audiences within six months.

Tickets for Pirandello and Montoya are now on sale at the McCarter box-office and are available by mail from Box 526.

TO READ ALBEE

At Players' Meeting. A reading of Edward Albee's one-act play, "The American Dream" will open the 1963-64 season for Princeton's Community Players.

The reading will be given this Sunday at 8:30 at Murray Theatre. It will be open to the public without charge, and will conclude with the serving of refreshments.

Players expect to announce on Sunday the name of the season's first major production and the dates for tryouts. All those who come on Sunday will be invited to join Community Players and to contribute $5 a year in dues to the Players' treasury. (There are special rates for students because the Players, although primarily adult, welcome student members. Many of them have filled important roles in Players' productions.)

Miriam Lemwoll of Franklin Park has been appointed vice-president (production) of the Players for the coming season. She has also been named to the Board of Trustees, and will serve ex officio on the executive committee.

READY, FILM FANS?

Classics at McCarter. Tuesday nights will be movie nights at McCarter during the coming season, with Federico Fellini's "La Strada" as the opening presentation. The Academy Award winner will be shown on October 8 at 8 p.m.

During the fall and winter, McCarter will offer a two-part series, one devoted to Italian directors and the other to westerns.

Six films, made by such talents as Fellini, Vittorio de Sica and Luchino Visconti, will be shown during Part One, and movie-goers will have a chance to see once again "La Dolce Vita" and "Rocco and his Brothers."

"The American Western In Retrospect" is the title of Part Two. In this series, McCarter will show six classics, examining John Ford's "Stagecoach," made in 1939, and "High Noon," dating from 1950.

Other programs in the western series will feature the work of John Sturges, George Stevens and William Wellman.

A complete schedule, including several non-series movies, will be announced shortly. Subscriptions to the 12-movie series are now ready for sale at the McCarter box-office, or through the mail at Box 526, Princeton.

FILM SOCIETY TO MEET

In Lambertville. A new film society in Lambertville, organized for the purpose of viewing and discussing great films of the past and present which are not available for theatrical exhibition, will present its first program next Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. Films to be shown on that date are two rare Charles Chaplin features, "The Kid" and "The Circus".

All ten programs scheduled this season by the group will be presented at the New Strand Theater in Lambertville. Admission will be by subscription only, with series rates set at $15 for one, $25 for a family couple and $7.50 for those under 16.

Membership is open at any time, and each membership card is valid for ten admissions. They may be used for guests as well as members.

Checks should be made payable to the New Strand Film Society, Box 91, Lambertville, and memberships will be available at the door before performances.

. . . QUICK, GET THE FIRST AID AND RESCUE SQUAD: Margaret Rutherford and Springer Davis witness the unscheduled expiration of the wealthy Mr. Endersby in "Murder at the Gallop," at the Garden.

PLAYHOUSE

A Ticklish Affair (through Tuesday afternoon). Just how funny you'll think this affair is depends directly on how ticklish you are. According to the trade paper Motion Picture Exhibitor, which understandably likes to look with favor on almost any move made, "a tepid script causes this lightweight yarn to bog down somewhat, but it still should prove to be adequate summertime entertainment." Hardly a rave.

Chances are you've seen similar would-be airy comedy-romances on the screen before, with about the same quasi-sophisticated cute dialogue. Everyone in the United States Navy wants Shirley Jones to marry Gig Young; everyone, that is except Shirl herself, a Navy widow.

"You've been in drydock too long, honey," is the sort of counsel she receives continually from both port and starboard. But Shirley won't buy. She'd rather be independently gorgeous and den mother for her three young cubs (standard Hollywood cute smartypants) than be a roommate of any naval travelling man again, even if he be the braid-bedecked Gig Young.

Reason is, Shirl is up to here with military life and doesn't want her three sons to be Navy brats any longer. As the urchins' mother, she is of course unaware that they are already insufferably brattish.

She also doesn't realize they are incurably Navy. "Be Navy. Be Neat. Be Have," says the motto over their pallets, but obviously they've read no further than the first of the tripartite code of manners.

They flash SOS signals to nearby Navy vessels. They mess around with weather balloons. Finally, the youngest sails away over the sea by means of a multi-ballooned contraption.

In a monumental air-sea rescue mission, the kid is saved from his uncertain future as balloonist by a Navy blimp. A swinging gasser, dad.

Shirl, of course, then marries the Commander and so the story ends happily. Or happily ends, depending, as we said before, on how ticklish you are.

IT'S ME AND A WIG! The styling possibilities of a wig band are explored by Mrs. J. Oliver Gluyas, 73 Magnolia Lane, and Mr. Dominic, the hair-stylist who will be at Bamberger's next week in the Chantrey beauty salon.

IT'S NEW To Us

LET'S KEEP IT CLEAN

Look Out the Window. If your windows reflect the impress of small noses and the prints of careless fingers, drop in at Nelson's Glass Shop, 45 Spring Street, and pick up a can of Pittsburgh's silicon cleaner.

It's a window washer, spray form, which comes in a plastic squeeze bottle, and the great thing about it is the fact that it leaves no film. The greasiest surfaces — windows in kitchens, for example, or car windows sometimes — are left clean and sparkling without streaks. Costs 90 cents.

Another product they like at Nelson's is Pecora's aerosol can full of tub sealer. You aim one of the two nozzles at the line around your tub where the tile and the tub have parted, and press the button. The can shoots out a ribbon that seals everything back together again, without the need for a putty knife. (Comes in white only. If you've got a pink tub, you're on your own.) One dollar.

Just so you'll have something to try the silicon cleaner on, Nelson's provides you with a door mirror kit for only $9. It's a good mirror, beveled and everything, but light enough to hang safely on a modern hollow-core door. For the $9, you get a mirror 16 by 60 inches and all the clips and screws and hardware you need to hang it all at home.

This season of the year, of course, Nelson's is busy with storm doors and windows. For about $16, installed, you can have a good storm-screen window, and on up the scale, you can have an Eagle, the shop's favorite brand, for about $24, installed.

White is big and bright at Nelson's, and the baked-on white painted aluminum doors and screens blend right in with your house trim. A white Eagle door, combination screen and storm, is $75; plain anodized aluminum is $60, both prices including installation.

(And if time and the summer have done their work on an old door or window, Nelson's will replace the broken glass. Better look to this now, and beat the winter winds.)

While we're on the subject of doors, how about your fireplace? Glass doors by Thermo-Rite are magnificently framed with brass and designed to open wide so that you can heap high the Yule log, or whatever. They keep away smoke, sparks, drafts and contribute radiated heat (instead of a heat blast) and considerable drama to the appearance of your fireplace. Nelson's will oblige.

Full-length sliding mirror doors — now, there's the way to close off closet or dressing room! We saw them on display in the Nelson shop, and they're worth reflecting on next time you decide to redecorate.

Smaller mirrors by the charm-ful are all ready to take home. White painted cast iron table mirrors would be delightful in a Victorian bedroom or a girl's room, and the antiqued gold oval wall mirror would go in almost any living-room.

We were particularly taken by a medicine chest whose mirror is framed in decorative gold, just like a picture frame. It recesses into the wall, after the manner of medicine chests, but think of having your husband framed in antique gold every morning as he shaves! Staggers the imagination.

STRIKE UP THE BAND

The Wig Band is Here. Now, you too, Princeton housewife, may have a wig band, just like the models in the magazines.

Starting next Monday, Mr. Dominic the hair stylist will be at Chantrey, the Bamberger's hair-dressing salon, to introduce the wig band to Princeton heads.

Wig bands, in case you read The Atlantic and not Vogue, are made of real hair, 12 inches long, attached to a black velvet elastic band and a four-inch net base. The hair is combed into and used with your own hair.

Four or five coiffures are possible with a wig band, including a simple comb-back. If you want a page-boy, you achieve it with the flip of a brush. If you wear a French twist, you may use the wig band for the puff on top, if your own hair is too short.

Bamberger's stocks these wig bands in 18 shades, and you can probably match your own hair and walk right out of Chantrey with a wig band in your hand. Price is $65, with blondes and redheads priced at $75. If you wish, there are shorter lengths or versions with more curl, but these are slightly higher.

Besides the wig band, Mr. Dominic will bring along a new hair color which he calls deep, deep brown. It's a rich true brown designed to naturalize a real brunette who's been out in too much summer sun. Now you can look like yourself without waiting until December.

Styling consultation from Mr. Dominic will be free.

THEY WENT THAT WAY

Toward Ann Stanley. We've seen a lot of jumpers this fall, but Ann Stanley, the Shopping Center shop, seems to have a record number, in both junior and regular size ranges, and if they haven't leaped off the rack by the time you read this, you'll find a choice that is wide indeed.

We describe the cranberry colored ones elsewhere, so we'll leave those and go on to the grey-blue flannel that hangs absolutely straight from a red-smocked yoke. It has a square neck and three-inch-wide straps and is suitable only for reed-slim juniors with the flair to carry it off.

A grey flannel has a round collar stitched with red and an optional sash . . . A dark green A-line plaid with yellow crossbars has a neckline cut to a V and framed by a flaring sailor collar. Very, very low patch pockets . . . a beige-olive-cranberry plaid has a deep U neckline and sassy vertical pocket tabs . . . A long-sleeved Madras has a leather string belt to use if you want to.

All the above are for juniors. Then, for the regulars, Ann Stanley has a black wool shift with turnover collar and long sleeves and a wonderfully useful fall and winter dress in grey wool with a refreshing fitted waistline and two stitched gores in the skirt. There are small puff sleeves

By Princeton Orchestra. The Princeton Symphony Orchestra has increased its schedule of concerts from three to four for the 1963-64 season, all to be given in McCarter Theatre. The dates are October 28, December 16, March 16 and April 13.

Series tickets may be obtained by writing the orchestra at P. O. Box 455. Single tickets will be available two weeks before each concert at the University Store and at McCarter Theatre the day of the concert.

Louis Strunsky, Malcolm Peyton and David Wells will be the soloists at the October 28 concert. Miss Strunsky and Mr. Peyton will play the Mozart Concerto for Two Pianos, with Mr. Wells performing the Dvorak Cello Concerto.

The Westminster Choir will present Mozart's Mass in C Minor on December 16, with Adele Addison, a Westminster graduate, and Julius Baker, flautist with the Bach Aria Group, as soloists. Mr. Baker will play Mozart's Flute Concerto as well.

On March 16, Janice Harsanyi will present "Nuit D'Ete," a little known song cycle by Hector Berlioz, and the orchestra will play Faure's "Pelleas et Melisande" and a composition by Peter Maxwell-Davies, who has come to Princeton from England. The British Broadcasting Corporation gave Mr. Maxwell-Davies' work its premiere performance recently.

Artur Balsam, soloist at the April 13 concert, will play concertos by Mozart and Hummel. A violin concerto by Noel Sokoloff of Princeton to be performed by Joseph Kovacs, the orchestra's concertmaster, and a work by Dika Newlin of Drew University will be included in the season's programs.

Marple, Agatha Christie's tweedy crimebuster. Miss Rutherford, a kind of Dame May Dotty of the British screen, cops a blue ribbon and best-in-show for this one.

A 71-year-old oversize bundle of charm, Actress Rutherford is, in her own weight class or any other, possibly the funniest women going. In "Gallop," she is obviously enjoying herself to the full as the tireless Justin Hawkshaw, and she projects this gusto and gaiety undiminished to the viewer.

Miss Rutherford, after an untidy homicide has taken place within her bailiwick, trots off in search of the killer and finally comes up short at a country inn called The Gallop. There she spies and pries, got up in an outfit of crumpled tweeds that could stop a slug from a .45.

In line of self-appointed duty she dares to ride a horse (in seeing this episode, you may find it helpful to remember that the horse is the one with a bridle in its mouth). She also essays to do the twist, an event which must surely have produced record readings on the world's seismographs.

Even romance threatens to block the path between the sturdy Miss Rutherford and the killer she tracks when local huntsman and innkeep Robert Morley suggests that she "keep her saddle" at his house.

After neatly cornering a maniac with nothing more lethal than her hatpin, she sniffily tells Morley why she will not share his bed and oats: "My dear man, I do not approve of blood sports."

PRINCE

Toys in the Attic (Saturday through Tuesday). The 'way down yonder in New Orleans theme of this film is based on a variation of the oldie, "Sick, Sick, Sick," as swung so persistently by Tennessee Williams and his Dixieland Band. This time it's Lillian "Happy" Hellman blowing lead horn. Like blue, man.

"Toys" is what Hollywood chooses to label "a decidedly adult film." By that, H'wood means, of course, "a decidedly adulterous film," with a couple of extra sexual short-circuits twisted into the main line for added marquee voltage.

The original story was a typical Hellman's mayonnaise—with capers; powerful and dramatic, unpleasant yet somehow fascinating. But it loses a lot of depth in its transfer from the theater, where it won the Drama Critics award for 1960, to the cinema, where it won't win the New Orleans Booster Club award for 1963, that's for sure.

The script ambles its way through and about the problems of two spinster sisters, one of whom exhibits an untidy passion for her amoral younger brother (played by Dean Martin, on detached service from Sinatra's Mafia). The writing lacks tautness, consequently the film becomes a kind of documentary of two women shrilling at each other over something that hardly seems worth all the decibels.

What was generally good drama as a play becomes improbable melodrama as a movie, a carpet-bagger's collection of caterwauling crises mixed in with unnecessary truck about incest, miscegenation and other ham-and-grits erotogenic exercises. "Toys in the Attic," Hollywood-style, might better have been named "Ambivalence in the Basement."

RIGHT GROUP MEETS

To Hear Plans. A standing-room-only audience, estimated at about one-third Negro, two-thirds white, attended a meeting last Thursday at Witherspoon School called by the Princeton Association for Human Rights.

The audience listened to reports on the March on Washington, heard an expatriate Princeton Negro tell what it was like for a Negro in Princeton in the old days, and then listened to Association officers outline plans for the future.

Henry Drewry of the Association's executive board, asked his audience to join the Association. "We are concerned with working out problems in the finest Christian tradition," he said, "and in speaking out with a louder voice."

He urged support for the Princeton Study Center, and said that the Association was working with Negro young people in an effort to show them that sustained good work in school meant good jobs.

He asked the audience to attend the League of Women Voters' candidates meeting on October 23 when the question of the evening will concern civil rights, and he suggested a letter-writing campaign to United States Senators in support of President Kennedy's civil rights bill, and to State Senator Sido Ridolfi on the housing bill now pending in the State Senate.

Mr. Drewry reported that members of the Association for Human Rights had been conferring with Princeton employers and unions on the subject of employment for Negroes and were now concerned with matching qualified people with available jobs.

YOU CAN'T SEE THE TOMATOES FOR THE VINES: This eight-foot tomato plant wasn't grown in Texas but here in Princeton at 16½ Leigh Avenue. The man with the green thumb responsible for it, Gus Hyter, reports that it has already yielded three dozen baseball-sized tomatoes and is starting on its second growth. He attributes its mammoth growth to the type of fertilizer he uses. (Staff Photo)

NEED A DESK? OR BED?

University to Auction Many. This Saturday a day-long auction at the University Armory will have over a thousand items of student furniture up for sale. Hundreds of desks of every design, many bureaus, high chests, tables, desk chairs, occasional chairs, beds and book cases are on the "for sale" list.

In addition to student furniture, a number of other items of interest will be knocked down to the highest bidder. Among these is a set of 80 prints of plant life, from the Biology Department, which originally was in the British Museum.

Most of the furniture is fairly new (three to ten years old) and in good condition, according to Auctioneer Robert Slatoff. He added that you couldn't rule out the possibility that some buyer may walk away with a one-time Woodrow Wilson (Princeton '79) desk, John Foster Dulles (Princeton '08) chair, or Norman Thomas (Princeton '05) bureau.

Also scheduled for the auction are a number of large banquet tables from the old Princeton Club of New York.

The auction will be held fair weather or foul, starting at 9 a.m., and will continue until everything is sold. An inexpensive lunch can be purchased

RAW JUICES AND DIET FOR THE ARTHRITIC

Cheerfulness and optimism are milestones on the road to recovery; but carefully selected raw vegetable juices and the proper diet will keep one there. As is true with so many other diseases, in practically all cases of arthritis, there is a history of vitamin and mineral deficiency in the diet. It is to remedy this lack that fresh fruit and vegetable juices are included in the dietary treatment of this ailment. For FREE booklet on the "VALUE OF RAW JUICES," Address P O Box 332, Princeton, N. J.

SEMINARY SETS RECORD

With Highest Enrollment. Princeton Theological Seminary will open its 152nd academic year on Tuesday with over 200 new students and, with a total of 515, the largest enrollment in its history. The Reverend Dr. Theophilus M Taylor, secretary of the General Council of the United Presbyterian Church will deliver the convocation address.

Ten new faculty and staff members will assume their duties at the Seminary with the start of the fall term. Faculty additions include two visiting professors, a visiting lecturer and four instructors. Four men have been appointed to new administrative posts.

During the fall semester, the Seminary will initiate an experimental program for the training of religious leaders from university campuses throughout the world. Twenty-two campus Christian leaders from 17 nations will participate in the five month program to be held at the Seminary.

The new program, organized by the World Student Christian Federation, is designed for "the stimulation and training of leadership for the life and mission of the Christian community in universities." The Reverend Dr. Ely Mapanao, a minister of the United Church of Christ of the Philippines, will be the resident director of the program.

FIVE ARE INJURED

In Township Crash. Five persons, including two Princeton University students, were injured Monday afternoon as a result of a two-car collision on Cherry Valley Road. The mishap occurred on a sharp "S" curve just west of the intersection of Heather Lane.

All were taken to Princeton Hospital for treatment. One, Mrs Alma Brooks, 62, Mountain Christian Church Road, Hopewell, was admitted and her condition was reported to be fair. She received deep lacerations of both lower legs, a laceration of her forehead and contusions.

Less severe injuries were sustained by Samuel Brooks, 70, the driver of one car, and by Charles Haskins, 17, of Hopewell, a passenger in the Brooks' car. Both received lacerations and contusions.

The second car was operated by John F Maloney Jr., 20, of Chappaqua, New York. Both he and his passenger, Harold H Helm, 19, of Louisville, Ky., are Princeton University juniors. Mr. Maloney received contusions of the head, arm and knee; Mr Helm, multiple abrasions and contusions of his left hand and forearm.

According to incomplete records of State Police from the Princeton Barracks, who investigated the accident, Mr. Brooks drifted into the wrong lane while negotiating the curve and into the path of the Maloney car. They report the accident is still under investigation.

WE'RE OFF!

Democrats Launch Campaign. "The Democrats have been the 'doers' on the national scene and the Republicans have been the caretakers, and this has held true in the Borough of Princeton as well," said Minot C Morgan Jr., Democratic candidate for Mayor, in an address this week to the Princeton Democratic Club.

Mr Morgan equated the challenges facing Princeton with those facing the nation and charged Princeton's "one hundred percent Republican" administration with failing to meet them. He stressed the population explosion and equal rights and cited as their corollaries the strangulation of traffic, urban congestion and transportation breakdown.

The ability of a local government to meet these problems before they become acute is the real test, Mr. Morgan said.

"It's not enough to say that by 1975 every day on Nassau Street will be like the Yale game — prevent it. It's not enough to ride with the tide of civil rights — inspire it. It's not enough to slam the barn door on business frontage when a horse of a building is halfway across Nassau Street toward the school playground — predict it."

Referring to the Democratic platform, which will be sent to every house in the Borough by the Democratic Committee, Mr Morgan said that it reflected a faith in the Borough of Princeton as a unique residential community for all the people.

JFK CLAN EYES HOUSE

Of Encircled Princetonians. According to an Associted Press dispatch from Hyannisport on Monday, the Kennedy compound there has a new addition

The release said that it had bbeen "disclosed" (a verb dear only to the hearts of AP writers) that Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Smith, brother-in-law and sister of President Kennedy, had bought the eigth-bedroom Hyannisport home of Mr. and Mrs Ledlie I. Laughlin, of Drake's Corner Road here in Princeton. Sales price was estimated at $120,000.

Everything correct in the story except the facts. The house has not yet been sold and the sale price is not $120,000 True, the Smiths have made preliminary negotiations, but the transaction has not been completed nor at the figure named, according to a member of the Laughlin family here.

If and when the sale of the 166-year-old house to the Smiths becomes a fact, the Laughlins' home would be the fifth in that part of the Hyannisport area to be owned by members of the Kennedy family

WASH-O-MAT ENTERED

Youths Are Apprehended. Frank Tarr Jr., 18, of Fords, N.J., is in Mercer County Jail awaiting action by a grand jury, following a hearing Saturday before Township Magistrate James S. Hill on charges of breaking and entering and larceny.

Tarr was arrested at 5 Friday morning by quick-acting patrols from the Township and the Borough as he and his juvenile accomplice were attempting to leave the Shopping Center Wash-O-Mat into which they had just broken.

Later, upon questioning, the pair admitted using a tire iron and screwdriver to force open a cigarett machine. From it they had taken nine packs of cigarettes and $7.45 in coins. The Wash-O-Mat is a branch of Princeton University Cleaners.

At the time of his arrest, the juvenile told police he was 18. As a result of this false information, he was placed in jail and his named released for publication He was released Sunday in the custody of his mother when she proved with a birth certificate that he was only 17. He will appear later before Mercer County Juvenile Judge J. Wilson Noden.

James E. Bryan, director of the Newark Public Library and former president of the American Library Association, will be the speaker. Mrs. Frank E Taplin is program chairman.

Hostesses for the evening will be Mesdames J. Douglas Brown, Whitney Coletti, Clan P. Carter, Philip T. White, George Gallup, Walter E. Edge, Frank W. Hobby, R. Morton Darrow, Sherley W. Morgan, Leroy E. Purvis, Oskar Morgenstern, Raymond Harper, Gordon D. Griffin, John L. Moore Jr and Miss Ellie Van Aalten.

Prayer For Birmingham

Community prayers on behalf of tension-torn Birmingham will be held from noon until 7 p.m. this Thursday in the University Chapel. Members of all faiths are invited by Dean Ernest Gordon and Princeton clergymen to enter the chapel when their free time permits to share in silent prayer and meditation.

Birmingham's influential 16th Street Baptist Church, where four teenagers were killed by a bomb Sunday, has particular ties to Princeton. The Rev. Benjamin J. Anderson, pastor of Witherspoon Presbyterian Church, is the grandson of the minister who headed the Birmingham church for more than 30 years.

MRS. MICHAEL RESIGNS

As Housing Executive. Mrs. Gloria Michael has resigned as executive director of the Princeton Housing Authority because she is moving to Pittsburgh.

Her resignation, accepted with regret by the Authority, will become effective September 30. In her place, Authority Commissioners have appointed Mrs. S. M. Slaby, 469 Ewing Street, who will assume her new duties on October 1 after a period of training under Mrs. Michael.

Executive Director for the past two years, Mrs. Michael was a commissioner for three years before that. She is leaving at a time of crisis for the Authority, whose proposed 30 units of public housing for the elderly are hanging in the balance.

The Authority would like to build on the two and one-half acre plot owned by Charles LaPlaca on North Harrison Street; however, Mr. LaPlaca has said that he is not willing to sell to the Authority.

Mrs. Michael and Mrs. Slaby were scheduled to confer on Wednesday with Federal housing officials in New York to see whether they will go along with the $94,200 valuation placed on Mr. LaPlaca's property by appraiser Vincent P. Bradley, of Trenton.

It is possible that Federal officials will suggest a 50-unit project, which might be more economical in view of the probable land cost.

Housing Commissioners will give a cocktail party in Mrs. Michael's honor late this week. Commissioners are Joseph Redding, chairman, Miss Esther Dilworth, treasurer and Kenneth Wells, Philip Minis, Sherman Bates and Mrs. Joseph Wood.

Registered To Vote?

To benefit residents on tight schedules, Borough and Township Halls will be open extra hours for voter registration. (The normal hours are 9 to 5, Monday through Friday.)

Borough Hall will also be open from 7 to 9 p.m. next Wednesday and Thursday, September 25 and 26.

Township Hall will be open from 9 a.m. until noon this Saturday and from 7 to 9 p.m. next Thursday, September 26.

CENTER NEEDS MONEY

For Tutoring, Study. "We have enough money to get us started this fall, but we need about $3,000 immediately, if we are to carry on effectively," said Mrs. Benjamin J. Shimberg, president of the Princeton Study Center, in a public appeal issued this week.

The Center provides a quiet study hall for boys and girls in grades through 12, with reference materials and a guiding hand for home-work. In addition, it offers a tutoring program for students who are having trouble with a particular subject.

The study hall will open for the school year on Monday, September 30 at Dorothea House, 120 John Street.

Contributions may be sent to Mrs. Shimberg at 25 Cuyler Road or Mrs. Loren Johnston, 101 Overbrook Drive. Checks should be made out to "Princeton Study Center."

FIVE LOSE LICENSES

Under State Laws. The New Jersey Motor Vehicle Division has suspended the licenses of four Princeton area motorists for speeding and another under its point system.

Speeders are John C. Smith, 40, Crescent Avenue, Rocky Hill; Madeline M. O'Donnell, 32, Nurses Residence, Princeton Hospital; Ronald G. Sheehan, 22, Dey Road, Cranbury; and Wayne S. Patterson, 19, Bedens Brook Road, Skillman. All lost their licenses for 30 days. Wilford F. Davis, 23, Plainsboro, lost his for two months on points.

MRS. SAUNDERS TO SPEAK

At Wilson Club Meeting. Members of the Wilson College Club of Trenton-Princeton will gather next Tuesday for a covered-dish supper at the home of Mrs. Frank Zavitkovsky, Pennington.

Mrs. David R. Saunders, a member of the Princeton Housing Group and the New Jersey Commission on Religion and Race, will speak on integrated housing.

WANT TO BE A LEADER?

Scouts Need You. A crucial shortage of troop leaders for Brownie and Junior Girl Scouts has developed in the Mercer Girl Scout Council, due to leaders moving up with the troops and the loss of leaders who move away when husbands are transferred.

This year, the newly organized Mercer Council has new handbooks for leaders at the four age levels, an expanded leaders' notebook and three training courses for Girl Scout Leaders.

The courses are "Group Leadership," which will be held six Tuesday nights from 7.30 to 10 starting next Tuesday at 4 Green Street; "Basic Leadership," a four-session course which will meet Thursday evenings from 8 to 10.30 at the Convenant Presbyterian Church, Parkway and Parkside Avenues, Trenton, and "Program Change," a five-session course scheduled for Thursday evenings 8 to 10 30 starting October 17 at the Convenant Presbyterian Church.

Application forms are available from Mrs. Philip Hammond 476 Ewing Street. Women who would like to know more about Scout leadership may obtain information by writing to the Princeton office, 4 Green Street, or calling WA 4-5815 any time Tuesdays and Thursdays, or from 10-1 Wednesdays.

RANGE: $1 TO $500

At Antiques Show. Antiques priced from one dollar to $500 will be offered for sale at the Eldridge Park School PTA Antiques Show, to be held at Lawrence Junior High School, Princeton Pike.

Houses were levelled, according to one authority, "because they were no longer occupied." Demolition also was done to make possible the eventual realignment of the street for east-west traffic to relieve Nassau Street congestion. (Staff Photo)

But This Is Princeton!

To the Editor of Town Topics:

Two weeks ago you published a letter entitled, "March on Princeton?" which related some of the housing barriers experienced locally by a professional Negro seeking a rental. As a matter of fact, he happens to be an executive in the United Presbyterian Church, U.S.A., the denomination which recently voted a $500,000 fund to help the Presbyterian church take immediate steps toward combating racial prejudice and injustice.

Simultaneously with the clergyman's efforts to find housing in our town, a similar story was unfolding for a Negro research chemist, Ph.D., University of Illinois. The results: for both, the same large comedy of errors in dignity, dollars, time and tenuous ethics. They have housing now, but the chemist who wanted to purchase a $32,000 house — a reasonable goal for a professional Princetonian — rents a house which meets the exact needs of the clergyman, who presently lives in pious seclusion in the country considerably distant from Princeton township and good commuting.

Let's take a look at The Problem somewhat from the broker's view . . . We have, at last count, 19 local brokers, a group of outstanding business people whose chief interest is undoubtedly to serve their community well. And, of course, incidental to community service is the matter of healty business.

A conservative look at the figures shows that in the last five years the Negro families who have purchased homes out in the community through the help of the Princeton Housing Group have spent nearly one-half million dollars on houses. Increasing employment opportunities for professional personnel coming into area firms will undoubtedly sustain this order of dollar magnitude from now on

What most brokers consider to be the number one problem, however, is the loss of business from white clients if brokers deal on an open market basis. Within the last few months and with very little effort, the Princeton Housing Group assisted by the Public Affairs Committee of the YWCA, has accumulated well over 600 family signatures to an open occupancy housing covenant.

Not single names, but families. With intensified canvassing, the list could easily be enlarged to triple this number—and will be. This kind of "on the record" support should be convincing and reassuring to Princeton realtors.

A second practical concern of the real estate business with respect to the open housing market is that of property values. Irrespective of the positive and unquestionable returns from a survey of nearly 100 transactions in local desegregated areas, and despite the staggering amount of evidence on a national scale compiled by Professor Laurenti of the University of California, brokers themselves are now laying to rest the myth that Negro homeowners have depressed our property values

Another hurdle which remains is the fact that no broker relishes the idea of being the first to sell or rent willingly to Negro clients (outside certain "acceptable" areas) for fear that he will be irrevocably labeled while his colleagues go untouched The magnitude of this fear is expressed when some brokers and builders say frankly that they prefer to run the risk of a law suit rather than the "He-sells-to-Negroes" label. This practice of covert or overt discrimination is getting to be more and more like a game of Russian Real Estate Roulette. . .

Why not all Princeton brokers pledge together to render identical and democratic service to clients, to begin on a stated date? Would not this be a more realistic and permanent "protection" to business interests, as well as a unified, dignified step in serving the Princeton community?

Why not a Citizen's Committee (Birmingham has one) of outstanding leadership from the University, the Theological Seminary, the Negro community, research firms, service clubs, Pastors' Association PMI, and PBA to meet with and back local brokers as they inaugurate such a pledge?

A march on Princeton? The answer may not be "yes" or "no" but "when."

"A ten-percent tax on estates? OUTRAGEOUS!"

When the Federal estate tax first arrived, in 1916, the maximum rate of ten percent applied only to estates over $5,000,000.

Today, estates as low as $75,000 end up in higher tax brackets than that.

How long since you've added up the value of everything you own—including the face value of all your life insurance?

Could be, the time has come to look into the tax advantages of trusts. Talk with your attorney and with us.

FIFTY GOLDEN YEARS

Two Couples Feted. Golden wedding anniversaries have come to two Princeton couples.

The Rev. and Mrs. Earl L. Douglass of 41 Armour Road, whose wedding day was the 7th, celebrated last weekend at a reception given by their children, Prof. Elisha P. Douglass of Durham, N.C., and Mrs. Eliot D. Allen of Deland, Fla. More than 150 guests were expected.

Mr. and Mrs. William F. Hall Sr. of 169 John Street were guests of honor at a party tendered by their children at the home of a daughter, Mrs. Ermaline H. Gaskins, on Route 206. Nearly 150 relatives and friends attended.

Mr. Hall, 76, and the Rev. Mr. Douglass, 75, are both former TOWN TOPICS' nominees for "Man of the Week."

"Wonderful Life." The Hall's have been knee deep in Princeton activities ever since their marriage in 1913. "They always mention what a wonderful life they have had together," comments their next-to-youngest son, F. Roger, a clinical pathologist at Northwestern University.

They have raised ten children, inspired them to attend college, and have played key roles in Princeton Life. Mr. Hall, in the mid-thirties was a member of the Citizens' Committee which was concerned with misunderstandings and problems caused by the construction of Palmer Square. He served on the Housing Authority in 1956-57.

Mrs. Hall, the former Ethel G. Van Zandt, was born here. She has been equally as helpmate, mother of ten (nine are living) and as a member of Witherspoon Presbyterian Church.

The Rev. Mr. Douglass, as reported in TOWN TOPICS on July 25, closed a successful 28 years as a pastor in 1945 and found himself with a burgeoning career as a writer on church topics. He writes two syndicated columns, "Strength for the Day," a weekly column on the International Sunday School Lesson, which together reach 102 major daily publications.

Mrs. Douglass, a rarely beautiful woman for her age, is a graduate of Goucher College who has served as president of the Presbyterians' mission work in Philadelphia and later in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. Fond of gardening and music, she has shared her husband's enthusiasm for Princeton football games.

FEDERATION TO MEET

At Putnam Home. The Princeton Chapter of the United World Federalists will meet at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Peter B. Putnam, 48 Roper Road, on Tuesday to discuss plans for observation of United Nations Day.

At a meeting in Newark, the state executive council adopted a resolution calling for ratification of the Nuclear Test Ban Treaty by the U.S. Senate. Among those present was Alda V. Bedford of Princeton.

The UWF is an American association for world peace through enforceable world law. Its program calls for strengthening the United Nations into a world federal government.

MEMBERSHIP TEA SET

By University Women. The Princeton Branch of the American Association of University Women will hold its annual membership tea Sunday from 3 to 5 in the lounge of the Princeton YMCA on Avalon Place.

In a talk entitled, "Challenge and Change in Denver," Mrs. Lynn B. Mann of Ten Mile Run Road will report on the national AAUW convention she attended there in June.

Women in the Princeton area who are college or university graduates are invited to attend the tea and to consider joining the organization. Additional information may be obtained from Mrs. Robert H. Uhl of Pennington.

BIRTHS

Girls, Girls, Girls! Fourteen girls and six boys were born last week at Princeton Hospital.

Daughters were born to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kehoe, Harris Road, Princeton Junction, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cunningham, Brook Tree Road, Hightstown, both on September 9; Mr. and Mrs. Moses Thomas, Dutch Neck Road, Hightstown; Mr. and Mrs. Stanley S. Glickstein, 7 Faculty Road; Mr. and Mrs. Theodore J. Greczyn Jr., 9 Plainsboro Road, Cranbury; Mr. and Mrs. Pierce J. Lonergon, Beden's Brook Road, Blawenburg, and Mr. and Mrs. Angelo DiMeglio, 2637 Princeton Pike, Trenton, all on September 11; Mr. and Mrs. Freeman J. ART In Princeton

FALL SEASON BEGINS

Art Classes For Adults. For the opening exhibition of the Fall, John Borden has collected in Gallery 100 a Princeton Artists Show, restricted to those artists who will teach adult classes in the community during the coming year. The aim of this particular exhibition is to help promote interest in the art classes by showing works in various media and styles.

Studio On The Canal. Rex Cortleigh, who has made of the Canal Studio an interesting workshop and a vital contribution to Princeton, will teach painting classes, drawing, as a good teacher does, upon the imagination of the student while drilling him in the basic techniques. His watercolor "Social Hour," one of a series on migrant workers, is an imaginative composition of colorful, active figures moving against a background of dark flecked with light.

Drawing will be taught here by Robert Mueller whose "Line and Dot" is an example of motion drawn in black and white whereas his "Robed Figure" is more complete and interesting in design and color. The study of graphic illustration will be offered by James Edwards, who displays his wide range of techniques in advertising and illustration by a patchwork panel including samples of everything from the pure realism of a dew dropped iris to the floor, caricatured figures of the theatre world.

Stefan Martin, familiar with all the modern forms of printmaking, is to teach wood engraving at the Studio. Two of his engravings, "Baroque Manikins" and "Rosettes," demonstrate his versatility and strong sense of design in the black and white medium.

Adult School. Among the courses to be given during the 22nd year of the Princeton Adult School is one in Sculpture "for beginners and advanced students, academicians and abstractionists" with H. Kempton Hastings. Though he does many portrait heads in the academic tradition, Mr. Hastings shows at Gallery 100 a more abstract sculpture piece of sharply closed and simplified forms in green tinted plaster.

Robert Burns, Chairman of the Trenton State College Art Department, will teach drawing at the Adult School. His "scratch-board" drawing of "Pere Goriot" is a fine illustration, strong in its composition and contrast of color, strong in the tension of the figure.

Therese Donohue who will be teaching a class in mosaics during the second term of the Adult School, is represented by a mosaic which utilizes the varied colors and shapes of ceramic, glass and pebbles in cement to construct the figure of a saint in formal pattern.

Hopewell Studio. William Monahan, who signs himself "Dolce" and who teaches classes in oil painting at his Dolce Studio in Hopewell is exhibiting an almospheric landscape of trees and a small "scratch-board" of a house and tree reflected in water. This a remarkable piece of communication.

Y Program. Classes in art at the Y are being arranged by Gretchen Sander and Cintra Huber. Mrs. Sander, hoping to develop interest in a tapestry class, shows several panels of "creative embroidery" which are simple designs worked on coarsely woven material. This is an excellent medium for individual experiment in color and design for decoration.

Cintra Huber, whose decorative sense has been applied to many community projects, shows in her drawings at Gallery 100 an innate sensitivity to the child's world and to the child's gesture and expression. "Griselda" is a portrait head of a young child who reappears in a genre piece of the

Sauce for Fall

If you ever doubted that cranberry is the color for the fall of '63, stop at Ann Stanley's in the Princeton Shopping Center and have your doubts removed.

We found cranberry first in a thickly flecked tweed jumper sprekled with white and bound at round neck and armholes with cranberry suede. It comes around again in a dark solid wool flannel for someone junior and innocent: a jumper hanging straight from a yoke, with long, gathered sleeves to match the collarless bodice, and square patch pockets.

In its mature guise, cranberry appears, in a bright knit suit whose pink overblouse has a wide bib collar. In its informal moments, cranberry wears a pair of wool slacks and cranberry print shirt. And with the cranberry skirt, it comes full circle, because here is the same flecked tweed as the jumper we described above.

How's that for cranberry sauce?

It's New To Us

and two close-set buttons at the waist.

The suit to wear if you want to match a bright October sky is the shaggy tweed with its open convertible collar, square jacket and labbed pockets. The fabric turns up again, oddly enough, in a floor-length evening skirt across the room!

Knit fans will examine a cafe au lait whose jacket has a slightly larger stitch than the skirt. An intarsia flower spray appears at the jacket shoulder and on the opposite hip. A two-piecer has garter stitched overblouse and skirt knit in deep green and finished with a band of black at wrists and at the four-button neck closing.

For a winter coat, choose White Mink, a three-quarter style the color of silver hair turning snow white. It's as cuddly as a big polar bear and a good bit more gentle.

OTHER PAPERS in Princeton will run your classified advertising for half-price, or free of charge if your for sale ads don't sell. In TOWN TOPICS, you'll find more ads and better results.

Next to it is a leopard, hooded like a falcon, and next to that is an acrylic pile with yellow quilted nylon lining bright against the olive green outside. It has a leather sash hidden in a tunnel that goes around the waist and opens at the front so you can tie the bow. Pockets zip, wrought brass buttons button. Price tag says $40.

Yellow, blue olive or red orlon shells, with classic drawstring neck and waist, will keep you stylish if not warm. The imported Loden in classic green with leather buttons, will do both.

Your blouse might be a Ladybug print or a severe shirt, widely striped in pink, oyster and charcoal, or in solid pink. Your sweater, a black popover with fringed turnover collar and fringed hem (orange, too). Your skirt, a reversible wrap-around in the softest sage green, with green, teal and black plaid, or — and this is our favorite — a dark blue work skirt that looks precisely like denim, even to the white stitching, but teases you because it was really made of wool all the time.

John Farrelly, critic and author, will again give his course in the Techniques of Fiction. Methods and examples from the classics and contemporary works will be studied, and Mr. Farrelly will criticize original work from his students.

Exercise classes for women are scheduled for both the first and second hours, under the direction of Mrs. Arden Zinn. Miss Ruth Steiner will conduct the two-hour sewing class.

The first hour will be demonstration, and the second will be devoted to individual projects of the students. Included in the course will be pattern making, use of the electric sewing machine, fabric selection and construction techniques.

ITALIAN-AMERICAN TOUCH: Francesco Gargione (right) a native of Salerno, Italy, has joined the Forer Pharmacy after earning degrees in his native land and in this country. With him is the proprietor, Morris Forer. For a report on their successful employee-employer relationship, see below.

BUSINESS In Princeton

FARMACIA TO PHARMACY From Salerno To Princeton. When pharmacist Morris Forer played a long shot last June, he came up with a winner.

He took a chance on smiling young Francesco Gargione, late of Salerno, Italy, at the request of Joseph Nicholson, president of the New Jersey Board of Pharmacy. And he hasn't regretted it since.

It is one thing, as Mr. Forer knows, to train an intern-pharmacist — and it's another to grope your way through broken English to do it. Further, how well could the young man communicate with the customers?

Mr. Forer plunged in. He's now the fourth American to help "Frank" on his way. The customers like his new intern . . . some, in fact, break into delighted Italian after hearing his first few words. But Mr. Gargione sticks to his efforts in English.

Study in Contrasts. They make quite a team. Mr. Forer is tall and tousled, spiking his comments with salty humor. Mr. Gargione, compact and very precise, thumbs his pocket dictionary to make his basic thought understood. When he sees the joke, the tenseness fades from his face, leaving it warm and merry.

One is a graduate of the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy, Class of 1928. The other received his degree in pharmacy in 1958 from the University of Bari, Italy, and a second degree last June from the pharmaceutical school at Temple University. The daily rub of comparisons between Italian and American pharmacies has left with mutual respect.

The labels on the Forer shelves are familiar to the young Italian, for American pharmaceutical firms sell $60 million yearly to Italian wholesalers. But Mr. Gargione was shocked by Mr. Forer's 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. workday. The standard is 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. and 4 to 8 p.m. in Italy.

By law in this country, a registered pharmacist must be on duty whenever the store is open — which makes it a little difficult for Mr. Forer to get a haircut. In Italy, the pharmacist is always on call at home, and he may leave town at night only if he gives his key to the mayor or a doctor.

An Italian prescription is filled by the pharmacist and returned to the customer; here they are kept and filed by number. The strictness of Italian narcotics rulings requires the pharmacist to call the physician before filling the prescription.

Fresh Start. In Italy, Mr. Gargione managed a pharmacy in Viggano-Potenza from 1958 to 1961. He's starting over again in this country because, as he says, "I can't win in Italy because I was young."

He was boxed in because of a seniority system in Italy. It limits the number of pharmacies to a ratio of 1 to every 5,000 people and, when a store is available for purchase, the authorities give the druggists with the greatest seniority first crack at it.

Almost A Citizen. Having just missed being born a United States citizen by three months, he took out his first papers last May. Back in 1932, his parents and sister immigrated to Trenton, where his father found a job in a doll factory.

After eighteen months, his father sent his family home, unable to support them because of the depression. His son was born in Salerno, and Francesco first saw his father four years later.

His boyhood was spent in Nazi-occupied Salerno, where he attended the convent school and gymnasium. World War II street-fighting is cruelly clear in his mind. "From my home I saw everything."

Through these years his father struggled for a toe-hold in America. He ran a restaurant in Bristol, Pa., later owned one on Clinton Avenue, Trenton, which his wife sold in 1960, three years after his death.

On The Way Up. Now the son is engaged in a similar battle for survival after having left Italy a year and a half ago.

For the first five months, living with an uncle and cousin in Trenton, he could find no work. Then he got a job pushing a broom in a Trenton store. His second job was with American Tobacco Company, where the personnel man, Martin Gill, took a liking to him, and found him a job as a laboratory technician with Bayer Aspirin.

"After he made a few dollars," Mr. Forer says, "he went over to Temple to see about getting a degree." Here, again, a helping hand came along. Mr. Gargione so impressed the dean of the Temple pharmacy

Miss Wagoner was editor-in-chief of the school's literary magazine, while Miss Switten was a member of the school's orchestra, band and choir.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Tallock, 260 John Street, were in Miami Beach, Fla. during the recent convention of the American Legion held at Miami Beach.

TO MANAGE FORD AGENCY

In Hartford. Richard Swinnerton Jr. has been appointed general manager of Jones Ford in Hartford, Conn.

The son of the late Richard Swinnerton, University athletic coach, and Mrs. Swinnerton of 5 Murray Place, Mr. Swinnerton lives in Orange, Conn. He moves into his new position from the Norwich (Conn.) Ford Company which he has served as general manager for the past two years.

A graduate of The Hill School and Princeton University (class of '51) he served with the Army in Germany. He was district manager of New York City for the Ford Motor Company before moving to Connecticut.

Dr. Paul R. Chesebro, headmaster of the Hun School and governor of the 751 district of Rotary International, will meet with officers of the 48 Rotary clubs in the district for a one-day district Institute on Rotary administration and service activities.

The institute will be held Monday at the Far Hills Inn, Somerville, and will emphasize the benefits of international exchange through person-to-person activities like letter writing, hospitality to visiting students, trips and district conferences.

DRAKE JOINS LITTLE

As Senior Consultant, Robert M. Drake Jr., chairman of the mechanical engineering department at Princeton University since 1957, has joined the engineering division of Arthur D. Little Inc. Cambridge, Mass., as a senior staff consultant.

Before joining the Princeton faculty in 1956 as professor of mechanical engineering, he was with the aircraft gas turbine division of General Electric. He has served as consultant to a number of companies and is a member of the National Science Foundation's advisory panel for the engineering section.

Judith Ann Holtfish, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Holtfish, 33 Van Kirk Road, is among the 567 girls enrolling this week for the 85th school year at Northfield School, Northfield, Mass.

school that he was required to repeat only the senior year, instead of the usual two years.

"It was rough — lectures in English. He had a hard time," adds Mr. Forer. "But he made it."

"He's not like a lot of these kids just out of school," says Mr. Forer. "Work he's not afraid of. If a rush order comes in, he'll jump in the car and deliver it.

"The seriousness of approach is different. Everything is systematized in the small Italian pharmacies, and that's the way he does it here."

Mr. Forer, in fact, is strictly on his intern's team. "I've got to find Frank an English class. I will fix his hours . . ."

"A good class," interrupts Mr. Gargione firmly, "where they have grammar, and not just talk."

"And then," says Mr. Forer, "I've got to find him a rich wife . . ." Mr. Gargione understands and laughs.

PANICARO IS MANAGER

Of Tiger Bus Line, Richard J. Panicaro, of 22 Spruce Street, has been appointed vice-president and general manager of the Tiger Bus Line.

Mr. Panicaro, a onetime resident of Rocky Hill, began his close association with Princeton early — he was born in Princeton Hospital. He was educated here, graduating from Princeton High School in 1949.

Following two years in the Marine Corps, Mr. Panicaro joined the Borough police department in 1954. He left the force in 1961 to join Tiger Bus Line. He is married and is the father of three children.

Tiger Bus Line, under Mr. Panicaro's management, plans to expand its already extensive charter bus service for school transportation, athletic team trips, church groups, industrial tours and out-of-state excursions. Its headquarters are at 285 John Street.

NUMBERS GAME: One of these three tailbacks will get the starting assignment for Princeton when it opens the 1963 football season with Rutgers a week from Saturday. At left is Pete Porietis (45), while Hugh MacMillan wears 47. Both are seniors who have seen considerable action during the past two seasons. At right is junior Don McKay (40), a defensive specialist last fall whose all-around ability promises steady two-way duty this season.

TIGERS SHAPE UP

As Football Opener Nears. Despite the inevitable September rains which interrupted the welcome spell of cool, clear football weather, progress has been reported steadily by Princeton from its Blairstown training camp. The Tigers will conclude their two-a-day sessions there Friday and will return here to face Lehigh Saturday in a closed scrimmage prior to their season's opener with Rutgers on the 28th.

Half a dozen personnel switches have been made, faster development than anticipated has been noted on the part of a few varsity reserves and sophomores, and belief that the team may do better than some of the pessimistic predictions made for it continues. There has, however, been one jarring development.

Senior Ed Costello, veteran 215-lb tackle, may be lost for the early games on the schedule. He underwent a knee operation last spring and cannot move with anything close to complete freedom. There is a strong possibility that he may be held out of contact for a month while he takes special knee exercises to regain full strength.

His replacement will be Ernie Pascarella, a 215-lb junior who won his letter a year ago and holds much promise. Costello's probable loss, however, would deprive the Tigers of a key player.

Position Run-Down. By positions, this is the situation as the 1963 season nears:

Ends: Big Bill Howard, 6-4, 212, the basketball-captain elect, is a sure starter, with reserve strength in Bob Keyes, a converted quarterback, and letterman John Clarkson. The situation on the other side of the line is more fluid, largely because of the unexpectedly rapid development of Jim Hackett. A 195-lb. junior, he went to Blairstown listed as a fullback but has made much progress as a shortside end.

The coaches will choose from among Hackett and two classmates who won letters last year, Bill "Robby" Robinson and Jim Batcheller. The nod may well go to the player with the best defensive skills, particularly in view of the Tigers' troubles at end last season.

Tackles: Watch for Captain Bill Guedel, 195 pounds of speed and aggressiveness, to become as good a tackle as there is in the Ivy League. He and Pascarella will make a fine pair, backed by Dun Pett, 205-lb converted guard, and Wendell Cady, 215-lb. reserve tackle.

Guards: Senior Al Swenson (205) and junior Ned Porter (200) are the probable starters, with the latter another player whose Blairstown progress has delighted the coaches. They are getting the stiffest sort of competition from a pair of 215-lb sophomores, Paul Savidge and Stan Maliszewski. One or the other might crack the starting lineup as the season progresses.

Center: A probable sophomore starter here in the person of Kit Mill, 195-lb. operative who can go both ways.

The only letterman at the position, senior Bill Crano, was used almost entirely on defense last year and has been slowed by a chipped bone in his ankle. Juniors Mike Smith and Bob Duncan are also in the picture.

Backfield: Three sure starters are wingback Jim Rockenbach, quarterback Dick Springs and fullback Cosmo Iacavazzi. This trio played together in a reserve capacity last season and has a full share of experience. Rockenbach is as tough as they come and runs extremely well in a broken field; Iacavazzi, the team's leading scorer as a sophomore, is Princeton's nominee as the league's best fullback for 1963.

Pete Porietis was the fourth member of this group last fall, and no one questions his running ability from the tailback slot. He has not, however, fully proved himself as a passer, particularly on deep pitches, and off the Tigers poor showing in the airlanes last season (less than 70 yards gained per game), there is every need to strengthen this department.

Junior Don McKay, who ran only three plays last fall when he was used steadily on defense, may have the best all-around ability of those seeking the tailback berth. In pre-season estimates, he was the coaches' choice for the job.

McMillan is the fastest, covering 100 yards in under ten seconds as a member of the track team, but he completed less than a third of his passes last year and appears unlikely to wrest the starting assignment from Porietis and McKay. If he breaks into the open, however, watch out.

56 GOLFERS QUALIFY

In Springdale Championship. A total of 56 entrants qualified last Saturday for match play in the annual club championship tournament at Springdale Golf Club. Sixteen qualified for play in the championship flight, and the remaining 40 were divided into five additional flights of eight each.

The first round of the championship flight was played on Sunday. The results: Bob Shaw beat Bill Pettit, 1 up, 20 holes; George Young beat John Chubet, 3 and 2; Gerry Lauck beat Lew Sarett, 3 and 2; Eddie Donovan beat Bill Paine, 4 and 2; Brud Cook, last year's champion, beat Dick Morgan, 4 and 3; Frank Petito beat Bill Augostine, 3 and 2, Ken Dawes Jr beat Crowford Madiera, 3 and 2, and Karl Pettit beat Cris Rudgers, 6 and 4.

Pairings for the first round of the second flight are: Bill Bunthron vs. John Becker, Don Donahue vs. Cobbles Sturhahn, Fred Peterson vs. Dick Judge and Maury Mather vs. Mickey Shannon.

Third flight: Len Berry vs. Jack Huughton, Roland Smith vs. Tom Dignan, Bill Sayen III vs. Jack Sweeney, John Grover vs. Mac Morris.

OPTIMIST AND REALIST: In picking the Princeton University Tigers to win all nine of their games this fall, Mike Pomianoski (left) could be accused of being somewhat on the optimistic side. Former Princeton High football standout John Kowalski is more critical in his predictons, picking the Tigers to win five. For more pre-season quarterbacking, see below. (Staff Photo)

Question of the Week

Question: How many football games do you think the Tigers of Princeton University will win this year?

Where asked: Around town.

Mike Pomianoski, Plainsboro, freshman, PHS: I think they will win them all. They've got Cosmo Iacavazzi and he was good last year, so this year he should be even that much better. They'll have a strong running attack and I just don't know of any team that will beat them.

John Kowalski, 67 Random Road, freshman, Rider College, voted outstanding athlete at PHS last year: I'll give them five out of nine. Rutgers will probably beat them in the opener, Dartmouth will beat them, Harvard should and probably Yale. But I don't think they are as weak as many people seem to think they are. Position by position, they seem to be fairly strong. Whether they will work together as a team, though, I don't know.

John Van Kirk, Hamilton Square, line foreman for Public Service: They'll win seven. I just have a general feeling they'll do pretty well. They have some big fellows in there and some good runners. I don't think Harvard will beat them but I'm afraid of Rutgers. I think, if they get by Rutgers, they'll do all right. That is, if they don't get a lot of injuries—that's what hurts.

Peter Carson, Joline Hall, University junior: I imagine seven out of nine would be a good estimate. I hear we need a center but I would think the backfield will be strong because we'll have Cos (Cosmo Iacavazzi) there.

Eugene Taylor, Cherry Valley Road, Joline Hall custodian: Out of the nine, they should win at least six. I don't think they'll beat Rutgers because it's the first game and their hearts won't be in it. They won't be up for it.

Mike Burrill, Dod Hall, University sophomore: I read in Sports Illustrated where we were going to be picked as a dark horse in the Ivy League. What they did in predicting winners this year was to list, roughly, the way the teams finished last year. That's the trouble with most sportswriters who make predictions: they don't bother to analyze, they just lean on last year's standings. I think Dartmouth and Harvard will finish ahead of us, but we nearly beat Dartmouth last year, so I don't think we should give up hope.

Kenneth Gross, NYC, law student: Out of the nine, I say Princeton should win five or six. I think Harvard and Dartmouth will beat them and I think they'll lose to either Columbia or Cornell, probably Cornell. Cornell is a threat with Wood, and Roberts is back at Columbia. Rutgers is apparently in a rebuilding year, but I still think they have a good chance against Princeton. Actually any team can beat any other team on a given Saturday in the Ivy League. In the pre-season polls, I don't think Princeton has been picked any higher than fourth. Most of them are predicting Dartmouth to repeat with Harvard right behind, with Cornell and Columbia to give those two the most trouble.

Bill Price, Holder Hall, University sophomore: I say we'll finish third in the Ivy League. We'll lose to Dartmouth and Harvard but I can't see any other team defeating us.

Lewis "Tiger" Robeson, 78 Nassau Street, bootblack: I think they'll surprise a whole lot of people. They'll win at least six out of nine. They'll have a good line but they are awfully weak on defending against the forward pass. I'm going to write to Colman and tell him to work on that. They should be strong carrying the ball. Cos is stronger and better this year. He scored seven touchdowns last year and he didn't even play half the time. They're going to have trouble with Harvard, Colgate . . . they'll beat Dartmouth . . . but they'll have to watch Columbia. Columbia hasn't beaten Princeton in a long while and they have Archie Roberts, a great passer. They have plenty of time yet to rectify their pass defense weakness and if they can, they'll be all right. They just haven't had it. I've been watching these games since 1909.

George Ivey, Trenton, cable splicer for Public Service: I'd say they win about half. I don't know that much about the team but just from one year to the next you get an average. They usually win about five and then about ev-

Cary S. Kammler

After our friend told us those interesting things about the lobster we wanted to learn more about this curious creature, but found that very little has been written about it, so we gathered additional facts from various sources. Apparently lobsters have been eaten by man wherever they are found, going all the way back to ancient times. It must have been a pretty hungry fellow who ate the first one, if he had to judge it just by appearances. The yardstick to their age is their weight. It takes about 6 years for them to grow to a one pound weight, and then an additional 5 years for each additional pound. In their beginning it takes 18 days from roe to 1-inch long baby lobster. Lobsters have been caught which have indicated 100 years age, but this is rare for they are usually caught in their span between 1 and 3 pounds, or six and fifteen years. A small percentage will be in the larger brackets, upto about 80 years of age, and the meat of these old fellows is every bit as good as the younger ones. They can gain weight only by shedding their outer shell, which they do periodically, by forming a soft shell under the hard one and then pushing off the old one up over their eyes. It takes two weeks for the soft shell to harden, during which time they may be eaten by other fish or lobsters, so they hide under rocks until the larger shell has hardened. There is a nerve under the shell at the top of the head, which if rubbed for a minute will put him to sleep in any position, even standing on his head. In operating an automobile agency for the greatest benefit of our customers, it is in knowing and using the lesser known facts and service as well as the usual things that adds up to such complete satisfaction for you, and means so much when you buy a car from us. QUESTIONS ANSWERED

By Notre Dame Scrimmage. The 1963 Princeton High School football squad engaged in its first interscholastic test Saturday when it tangled with Notre Dame High in a two-hour controlled scrimmage. It was two hours well spent, as far as PHS coach Dick Wood was concerned.

Chief value of the scrimmage was in its illumination. It went a long way in answering some of the vital questions that had to be answered before the team's opener September 28 against North Plainfield.

Said Wood after it was all over: "We looked good in spots we weren't quite sure about." Defensive coach Gerry Groninger commented, "At least we know what we have to work on."

The high spots uncovered Saturday would have to include the following: the unexpected fine running of Anthony Adams from the tailback slot; the power running ery third year they get a good team together and they really go to town.

Don Logan, Union Street, Kingston, technician for Forrestal. If they win six they'll be doing darn good. Cornell will beat them, Dartmouth, Colgate. Colgate always gives them a fit. Princeton is the worst in the Ivy League as far as losing good men. According to the reports, Princeton has the biggest rebuilding job to do of all.

Gus Hyter, 16½ Leigh Avenue, maintenance man, First National Bank: They should have a good year. I think they should take at least seven. In fact, they might go all the way but I'm afraid of Dartmouth and Harvard. Dartmouth doesn't have King back this year. That's one thing. He hurt them. Iacavazzi and MacMillan should have a great year. They should run crazy. Definitely be stronger in the backfield. They had it last year but I don't know . . . it just didn't shape up like everyone expected. I'd like to see them take it all this year; clean it up.

Jim Ptiox, 583 Ewing Street, employee for On Film: I think if they play .500 ball they can consider themselves lucky. They've lost too many seasoned players. I think the rest of the league is much better balanced this year, too. Harvard's got a good team, Dartmouth is always strong, and they get scared when they play Yale. They have a strong back in Cos but then it is more than a one-man operation. It's too easy for a team to set up a defense against one man. And in the buck lateral series Princeton uses, you've got to have more than just one good runner. Cos can't do it all.

William Tessein, 10 Alyce Court, Lawrence Township, mechanic for Hussey's Service Station, Nassau St.: I say they'll win five out of nine. I don't think they'll improve much over last year. I think they'll have trouble with Colgate and probably Harvard. I haven't heard too much about the team so far, but I don't look for them to have any trouble with Rutgers.

Lewis Ferrara, New Brunswick, barber for Nassau Barber Shop: I think about five out of nine. Harvard's got a good team; they'll get beat there. Colgate and Cornell are question marks. Dartmouth will beat them, that's a sure thing. They're not as strong this year in the backfield. Iacavazzi is a big, strong runner, but he can't take on the whole load. He can take care of his position 100% but he needs some help up front to clear the way. If they shape up at the start of the year as they did last year, they'll beat Rutgers. Rutgers lost a lot of men.

Tom Antonella, Levittown, Pa., ironworker: I think they'll win them all. They did pretty well last year, didn't they? From what I've been reading in the papers, the sportswriters say they'll do well. At least I hope they will.

Richard Gemberling, 13 Quaker Road, owner of Richie's Mobil: Princeton will win seven out of nine. I think with the staff they got they'll do o' v. Warren Harris is going to help them. McCandless should be rested and raring to go. And I think they have a better backfield this year than last, much better coordinated. The only two that will beat them is Rutgers and Penn.

How to keep your money in two different places
(AND LIVE TO REGRET IT)

Some people think it doesn't matter where you keep your savings as long as you receive a high return. They usually have their checking account at a Full Service commercial bank and their savings in some other financial institution.

People who have plans for their savings—like buying a house or car, sending the kids to college, or taking advantage of a business opportunity—know that there's one type of financial institution that can act as their financial partner in carrying out their plans. That's a Full Service commercial bank. This is true because a Full Service bank, unlike other financial institutions, can lend money for any legitimate purpose at rates generally lower than you'd find anywhere else.

To take advantage of this "financial partnership," just make us your financial headquarters for your checking and savings accounts, for all your loans. Get acquainted with at least one of the bank's officers so that you know where you stand financially right now.

When you need some extra money, borrow it from us instead of taking it out of your savings. Paying the loan back as promised will help build your credit reputation.

When you're ready for a major financial move, you'll find we can help you with advice and, chances are, with a low cost loan. No other type of financial institution can do as much for you financially.

That's why you'll be dollars ahead if you start doing business with our Full Service commercial bank now.

of veterans Bill Aiken and Paul Walstad; the pass receptions of Pete Heiberger at end; the passing of Dave Van Ness; the blocking of Rich Vomacka; the performance of Jim McKeever from his linebacker position, and the spirited defense of a forward wall comprised of Roy Ballenger, Andy Kully, Mike Hawk, Nick Long, Pete Webber and Jim Boynton.

One of Wood's most pressing question marks — the absence of a linebacker to work along side Bill Aiken — appears to have been answered in highly-satisfying fashion. Co-captain and offensive tackle Jim McKeever, a 6-3, 210 pound lower of beef, was given the assignment.

"He did surprisingly well," Wood commented. "He was in the right position at the right time and that's what counts."

Adams Runs Well. Wood also acknowledged the running ability of Adams was "something we didn't expect." Adams will add further depth to the all-important tailback position, one that is already three-deep in lettermen.

Adams accounted for the Little Tigers' only tally when he shot through a gaping hole for a 70-yard touchdown gallop. One observer commented the hole was so big that there was nothing between Adams and the end zone from the moment he got the ball. Some devastating blocking by McKeever, Vomacka and end Richard Daniels paved the way, with Daniels throwing the key block.

Another key question mark — passing — was answered satisfactorily — in sports — by both ends. Heiberger pulled in several aerials and on the strength of his showing it would appear he has a strangle hold on one end position. His counterpart, Daniels, had the misfortune to drop a perfect strike from Van Ness after he had eluded all possible defenders. It was a touchdown play all the way and the only possible way to have improved on it would have been for Daniels to catch the ball.

More important to Wood, however, was his observation that the ends were running their patterns well and were in position. "This is something we have worked hard on," Wood said. "We've made them run their patterns over and over and, though a few times they were out of position, on the whole, they did a commendable job for so early in the season."

The passing, on the other hand, was inadequate. Van Ness displayed the best form in the long pass. Jimmy Case was off form, in Wood's words, while he looks for Paul Walstad to improve his short passing. If this trio can live up to its potential, it will give PHS aerial depth it has not enjoyed for years.

Turning to the line, Wood admitted that it had its problems. Mainly, according to Wood, it had trouble adjusting to an eight-man line employed by Notre Dame on occasions. The play of veteran tackles McKeever and Sam Stewart could not be faulted but that of the guards, Jeff Lowe and Greg Seitz, was less stable.

Defense Holds. The Blue and White defensive unit turned in a fine goal line stand from the six-inch line. On second down, Notre Dame lost three yards, two the next, and eight more on its final try. On that fourth down, Nick Long broke through to spill the Notre Dame runner.

Summing up, Wood said "it went all right." I won't say we were overpowering because we weren't. But if Notre Dame is as good as they were supposed to be, then we did a good job. We weren't pushed around at all." (Notre Dame is one of the few high schools that holds a summer training camp. As a result, it had a two-week edge in experience over PHS.)

Who had the better of it? The question is largely academic because the emphasis was on experimentation and quantity, not on scoring points. "We ran a lot of plays we knew we weren't going to gain on just to see if they would work," said Wood. Even so, the consensus from among the onlookers was that the scrimmage was definitely Princeton's.

Statistically, the two schools were virtually even. Each ran 45 plays from them, PHS gained 224 yards and one touchdown; Notre Dame gained 202 yards and two touchdowns. However, PHS lost two tallies. One when a Van Ness-to-Heiberger scoring pass was nullified by an offside penalty and another when Daniels dropped the pass in the open.

Princeton High will hold its third and final pre-season scrimmage here Saturday at 9:30. Its opponent will be Bordentown High School.

Signet 200 2-door hardtop

This smart-looking 1964 Valiant is a hummer in its own right and it's the low-priced compact with a 5-year/50,000-mile warranty.*

It would take a lot of compact to top Valiant this year. Take styling. Valiant has more charm all around than most compacts. Take performance. Valiant's standard 101-hp engine is where the word "hummer" comes from. Take quality. Valiant's 5-year/50,000-mile engine and drive train warranty* speaks for itself. Take a test drive. Soon.

First two sessions among teams in the Princeton "B" League ended with Maul Electric in first place with 12 points, the Key Shop and Ivy Inn tied for second at eight points each. Highest single game of the week in this division was a 257 rolled by Bill Penelli, with Tom Friel's 200 second.

Season's opener in the Nassau League ended in a three-way tie for first. The Reformers, Tiger Garage and Nassau Delicatessen scored six points each.

Rudy Lehnert rolled high game of the week in the "B" league, 221. Trailing him for single-game honors was Val Ranallo. Theirs were the only 200-plus scores.

The meet is designed to offer school-age children an opportunity to compete in a regulation meet and to foster competitive swimming in the Princeton area. Entry blanks were sent to schools in the following communities: Princeton Borough and Township, South Brunswick, Pennington, Hopewell, West Windsor, Montgomery Township, Plainsboro, Cranbury and Lawrence Township.

PAINTINGS AT HUN

By Antonio Luccarelli. An exhibition of paintings by Antonio Luccarelli, Province Line Road, is on display in the student lounge of the Hun School. The show runs through Friday, September 27.

The paintings were made available through Gallery 100. A graduate of Princeton University, Mr. Luccarelli has had a one-man show at the Key Gallery, New York City, among others.

Another Gallery 100. In announcing the opening of a new gallery in Highland park, also called Gallery 100, it is to be emphasized that this is a completely separate function from Gallery 100 in Princeton. Mr. John Borden, who owns and operates the well known Princeton gallery, will serve the namesake gallery as one of the advisory directors with Mr. and Mrs. C R Pletzner Jr., but the management will be under the supervision of Mr. Robert Uhhaus.

The gallery opened on September 16 with an exhibition of watercolors by Henry Gasser, President of the New Jersey Watercolor Society, and oils by Valdi Maris, who is the art critic for the New Brunswick Home News and a well-known New Jersey artist.

The Frame Shoppe. Until October 2, The Frame Shoppe will continue a showing of pictures by Sandra Gardner, who has been studying at the Arts Students League in New York. She is exhibiting a group of her portrait studies, landscapes and still lifes. We liked best the color harmony and texture of "Autumn Flowers" and a wide-eyed portrait of "Mary Douglas."

The Silver Shop. The Silver Shop will have on view this fall sample watercolor "Portraits of Your House" by Hobbelink Haastra, artist from the Netherlands who lives in Lawrenceville and, during the winter months, operates the Hobbelink Haastra Gallery in Palm Beach. She will take orders for commissions through The Silver Shop.

News Of The CHURCHES

TO HEAR BILLY GRAHAM

At University Chapel. Evangelist Billy Graham will preach on November 3 in University Chapel, Dean Ernest Gordon has announced.

Coffin, Yale chaplain who is identified with the civil rights movement, on December 8; Dr. James H. Hester, president of New York University, on December 22, and the Rev. James Robinson, Operation Crossroads Africa, March 22.

Scherer, visiting professor of homiletics, Princeton Seminary, October 27; Edmund Steimle, Union Theological Seminary professor, November 17; and Walter D. Wagoner, The Rockefeller Theological Programs, Princeton, on December 29.

Also, the Very Rev. John B. Coburn, Dean of Episcopal Theological School, January 12; Richard L. Thomas, Wesley Foundation chaplain, January 26; Canon Bryan Green of St. Martin's-in-the-Bull-Ring, Birmingham, England, February 23; Charles Baldwin, Brown University chaplain March 1; President Henry P. Van Dusen, Union Theological Seminary, March 15; Robert P. Montgomery, Westminster Foundation chaplain, April 5; Theodore C. Speers, U.S. Military Academy chaplain, April 12; C. McCord, Princeton Theological Seminary, June 7.

SEMINARY EXPERIMENTS

International Group Here. Twenty-two Christian leaders from the university campuses of 17 nations have embarked on a five-month training program at Princeton Theological Seminary.

The two-phase program is aimed at "the stimulation and training of leadership for the life and mission of the Christian community in universities."

An in-service period of three to four months at student centers throughout the world will follow the resident study period at the Seminary. Final evaluation will be held next summer at the Ecumenical Institute of the World Council of Churches at Bossey, Switzerland.

Director of the program is the Rev. Ely Mapanao, a minister of the United Church of Christ of the Philipines. Professor Toyo Mase Fune, a lay leader of the Church of Christ, Japan, is resident professor. Seminars will be conducted by two Seminary professors, M. Richard Schaull, ecumenics, and Charles C. West, Christian Ethics.

Common Approach Sought. The experiment has been organized by the World Student Christian Federation to bring together men and women concerned with the common problems of Christianity on campus. Whether or not a "common approach" to the modern university can be developed is among the questions up for debate.

Participants include Presbyterians, Methodists, Lutherans, as well as representatives from the Mar Thoma, Armenian and Plymouth Brethren churches. With the exception of the conference leadership and one U.S. member of the Russian Orthodox Church, all are from Asia, Latin America and Africa — areas now struggling with rapid technological development and cultural integration.

TO SING SPIRITUALS

At Public Concert. A concert of Negro spirituals will be presented at 3:30 on Sunday by the Senior Choir of Mt. Pisgah AME Church at First Baptist Church, John Street. The occasion marks the fourth anniversary of the First Baptist Ladies Guild.

should you spend
for a pair of shoes?

The man who puts his money into shoes that are hurriedly constructed of inferior materials and sold at a lower price is actually spending more for his shoes than the man who enjoys the perfect fashion and wearability of Johnston & Murphy Shoes.

If you wear fine suits and refuse to spoil the effect with shoes of lesser quality you'll settle for nothing less than Johnston & Murphy.

The Rev. Dr. Burham N. Dell, 74, formerly of Princeton, died September 14 in Boston. He was a former assistant dean of the college at Princeton University.

Dr. Dell, a native of Florida, was a graduate of Princeton, Class of 1912. A star athlete during his undergraduate days, he and his classmate Dean Mathey of Princeton, won the intercollegiate tennis doubles championship in 1910.

He prepared for the ministry at Union Theological Seminary, receiving his degree in 1916, and served as an assistant in St. George's Church, New York City, and Emmanuel Church, Boston. In 1918 he joined the Army, serving as a chaplain with the 26th Division in France.

Deciding after the war to take up a teaching career, Dr. Dell studied at Harvard, where he received an A.M. degree in economics in 1922. Continuing his studies at Princeton, he was appointed an instructor in 1925 and an assistant professor in 1933—the year in which the university granted his Ph. D. degree.

He served as director of athletics from 1934 to 1939, and was also elected chairman of the University Council on Athletics. He became assistant dean of the college in 1914 with the rank of associate professor, and a year later added the post of dean of freshmen. He resigned both positions in the fall of 1943 when he rejoined the Army as a major in the military government section.

Discharged in 1946 with the rank of lieutenant-colonel, he has since lived in retirement in Nantucket.

Lawrence Township:

SMALL TOWN?

There may be some who find it difficult to associate such "big town" terms as political machine, power politics, etc., with a town as small as Lawrence Township (population under 15,000). As an aid to those seeking to face up to the existing situation, we would remind you of the following:

The reins of the well entrenched Mercer Democrats are tightly held by the long-term County Chairman; this unelected county executive hails from quiet Lawrence Township. His townsmen fill such diverse posts in the county structure as County Prosecutor, County Road Supervisor, County Tax Appeal Board Chairman, County Industrial Commission Chairman, etc., as well as occupying two out of the seven County Freeholder seats—all from a community with less than 5% of the county's 300,000 citizens.

Now where do you suppose the county Republican party officials have looked for "leadership" in what should be an effort to at least make a dent in the 100% Democratic county operation? Heavily Republican Princeton Township? Hopewell? Not so. The County Republican Chairman is a state employee from that same small municipality, Lawrence Township!

Shifting to another level—what urban center is the home base of the State Democratic Chairman—unchallenged leader of the group in power in the State House for ten long years? Jersey City? Newark? Not quite! This reputed chooser of governors and locator of national conventions is none other than Mercer's own County Democratic Chairman—from bucolic Lawrence Township. And counterpoint for the apparently endless State Democratic melody? It's to be provided this year by a State Republican Platform Committee headed by (ah, but you've guessed already!) Lawrence Township's very own—the ubiquitous Republican County Chairman.

OUR POINT in this lengthy recital is NOT to attempt an explanation of the minuets danced by Republican and Democratic party professionals in state and county politics, nor even to claim full understanding of them—but it is only to suggest that municipal affairs in diminutive Lawrence Township are inherently associated with party politics of disturbingly major proportions.

We are firmly convinced that, in this prevailing atmosphere, true representation of the interests and desires of the Lawrence Township residents will be achieved in the township government only through the election of INDEPENDENT candidates.

Community planning makes big sense. And so do the big new homes at Heathcote. Up to 5 master-sized bedrooms . . . 2 or 3 color ceramic baths . . . your choice of RCA "Connoisseur" or "Magic Chef" Kitchens . . . and outside, the privacy of your own full ¾ acre sculptured lot.

OPEN HOUSE

Sunday, September 22 — 1 to 5 p.m.

Moores Mill, Mt. Rose Road

Directions: Seven miles from Princeton—Rosedale Road to Carter Road, left on Pennington Mt. Rose Road. Then first road on right. Look for our sign (or call us for map.)

The rows are out — the stalls remain (an unique stable style kitchen).

The hay's out — but the space remains. (Haymow with 28 foot ceiling is currently used as basketball court and party room, but would make ideal dance, painting or sculpturing studio.)

The silos are down — but the forms (concrete) remain June as children's pool, the other as outside barbecue and patio).

The ladders are out — but in their place are spiral stairs to second level.

All the guts are brand new — Baseboard hot water heat with house divided into three zones; Heat costs last year — $395 because of extensive insulation in all ceiling and walls; 220 electric; new pump on deep well — enough water for 36 cows; all new plumbing (three new baths) and modern kitchen.

The stanchions are out — but in their place we have added rooms galore, originality and charm by the use of exterior natural siding as paneling to blend with flagstone, random-width pine boards, and wall-to-wall carpet complementing the fieldstone fireplace and beamed ceiling.

Leading off the entrance foyer, the library and guest room area; free standing spiral stairs to basketball court, hand-hewn bar, additional guest room and bath.

Dining room, living room, with step-down conversation pit; unique kitchen with all modern appliances and breakfast area.

Many windowed master bedroom suite with 1' x 7' mosaic tiled sunken bath, two additional bedrooms.

Beautifully landscaped country setting.

This is an ideal home for living and entertaining.

The reproduction value of this property which is in perfect condition would be about $100,000.

A mile to Lawrenceville Shopping Center. Five minutes from Princeton and Trenton.

Why do you suppose I've got such a bright future ahead?

"I'm tickled pink about living in my Nassau Estates home. Brother has a short walk to the new Lawrence Elementary School and Daddy is only five minutes from his position at RCA. Yes, and when I grow up I can go to either Rider or Princeton . . . but that's in the far-off future.

"Boy, there's nothing like the big lot you get with your house. It gives me plenty of room to crawl and run . . . and Big Brother is always playing ball with the kids. I'm a pretty lucky kid being born in a Nassau Estates home . . . and growing up in such a wonderful neighborhood."

Are New Homes Sold . . or . . Bought?

When the time comes to move from one place to another, most of us look forward to the prospect with some trepidation. At best, relocating is done with mixed emotions; at worst, it is a traumatic experience. The strain usually begins when you get down to selecting a new home.

We believe that homes are always bought . . . not sold. A subtle distinction, perhaps, but the most expert salesperson cannot sell you a home that you do not like and the home that fills your requirements will be bought without any sales pressure.

At Princeton Ridge, our models are open every day from 9:00 in the morning until sunset. There are no salespeople "on duty." If our homes appeal to you, we believe that you will tell us directly.

When you are in the market for a full value home in the Princeton school district, please pay us a visit. If Princeton Ridge suits your taste, needs, and bank account, you will buy . . . not be sold . . . one of our homes.
